

How has the Russia Ukraine conflict impacted Canadian markets?

The conflict in Ukraine/Russia is having a large impact on food producers.

Russia/Ukraine account for 30% of wheat exports and Russia/Belarus account for 40% of potash exports.

Canada is a major supplier of potash globally and it's benefitting our global producers.

And for example, in the Canadian market, Nutrien, which is one of the largest producers of potash, is benefitting both from rising production potash as well as significantly higher prices for its product.

Intended for Canadian Advisors and Accredited Investors

A widespread health crisis such as a global pandemic could cause substantial market volatility, exchange trading suspensions and closures, and affect fund performance. For example, the novel coronavirus disease (COVID-19) has resulted in significant disruptions to global business activity. The impact of a health crisis and other epidemics and pandemics that may arise in the future, could affect the global economy in ways that cannot necessarily be foreseen at the present time. A health crisis may exacerbate other pre-existing political, social and economic risks. Any such impact could adversely affect fund performance, resulting in losses to your investment.
